

Reversing prediabetes

Reversing prediabetes

How to reverse prediabetes | Diabetes UK

Skip to main navigation Skip to content

Save for later Page saved! You can go back to this later in your Diabetes and Me Close

How to reverse prediabetes

What's on this page? Can you reverse prediabetes? How can I try and reverse prediabetes? How to reverse prediabetes in three months Where to get support Can you reverse prediabetes? Yes, it is possible to reverse prediabetes. This is when your average blood sugar levels, known as your HbA1c, return to a normal level — below 42 mmol/mol. If you have prediabetes, your HbA1c is between 42 and 47mmol/mol. Prediabetes doesn't go away on its own. You'll need to make health changes — see our information below. Getting support to make changes gives you the best chance of making and maintaining them. There's no guarantee you can reverse prediabetes. But even if your blood sugar levels don't return to a normal level, any reduction will help keep you healthier. This includes lowering your cholesterol and blood pressure and helping prevent your HbA1c creeping up into the range for type 2 diabetes (48mmol/mol or above). See our information on what causes prediabetes . How can I try and reverse prediabetes? There is no one-size-fits-all way to reverse prediabetes, in the same way that the reasons you developed it are individual to you. If you're living with overweight or obesity, weight loss is likely to have the biggest impact in helping you reverse prediabetes. But if losing weight is difficult for you, or you're a healthy weight, a combination of dietary changes and doing more physical activity – can still help you reverse prediabetes. Eating more fruit, veg and other foods that are closer to their natural state, sometimes called 'whole foods' is an example of dietary changes. For more details, see our healthy eating tips for prediabetes. Doing more physical activity can start with breaking up long periods of not moving, such as being in front of the TV. See our tips on being more active at home . If you're thinking of changing your diet, losing weight or trying a new physical activity, please speak to your GP first. Risk factors tha

What can I eat with prediabetes? See our healthy eating tips Speak to your GP about type 2 prevention courses Find out more Want to chat things through? Call 0345 123 2399 Contact our helpline

Content last reviewed 27 January 2026 Next review due 27 January 2029

Save for later Page saved! You can go back to this later in your Diabetes and Me Close

Share this Page

© The British Diabetic Association operating as Diabetes UK, a charity registered in England and Wales (no. 215199) and in Scotland (no. SC039136). A company limited by guarantee registered in England and Wales with (no.00339181) and registered office at Wells Lawrence House, 126 Back Church Lane London E1 1FH

Back to Top

Brand Icons/Telephone check - FontAwesome    “ “
Header icons/tick icons/uk